

Sunday's Ball Game.

Every team and rig in the town that could be pressed into service was used to convey the ball team and the numerous fans—the latter consisting of many of the gentle sex—to White Oaks, to participate in and witness Sunday's ball game. Even the automobiles made the run up to the mountain town, bearing happy crowds, anxious to see Carrizozo wallop White Oaks.

It was an ideal day—just the kind to bring the playing qualities of both teams to the front; and the fans were much in evidence, the players of both teams receiving their due meed of praise or censure, as the point of view presented itself. We are compelled to acknowledge, however, that in this feature of the game Carrizozo was somewhat outclassed, and had the White Oaks boys played ball in accordance with the encouragement given, Carrizozo would have been out of the game from the beginning. As it was, there was glory in Carrizozo's victory and no dishonor in White Oaks' defeat.

The game by innings was as follows:

Carrizozo—0 0 0 0 0 3 0

The game was played on the old diamond above White Oaks where, in the past, many of the best teams of the country have met defeat, but the mountaineers' lucky star was obscured, and the above table tells the disaster that overtook them Sunday.

The batteries of both teams did the principal part of the work, though a few safe hits were made and at one time each team bunched a few, which, aided by errors, resulted in the runs made. So far as the News man was concerned, he was somewhat divided in his allegiance, and, while local pride made him desire victory for Carrizozo, old associations would arise in his mind, and at the final result he forgot to join in the cheering. However, he thinks he may gradually outgrow that shortcoming, and develop a more loyal feeling for the home team in the future.
